RESCUE DESERTING SOLDIER

TODD WAS ARRESTED NEAR GLENNVILLE FOR DESERTING FROM CAMP WHEELER.

Glennville, Ga., April 3.—Connie Todd, an alleged deserter from Camp Gordon, was rescued last night from S. O. Waters, chief of police of Glennville, and Wallace Perkins, an ex-soldier, after he had been arrested by them.

It has been rumored for sometime that Todd was in Liberty county not far from here and Perkins received authority to arrest him. He got the chief of police to aid him and they went on a hunt for Todd, finding him asleep in the slab pile of an abandoned sawmill about ten miles from Glennville. As soon as the officers nabbed him Todd began screaming for help and soon not less than a dozen men had come to his rescue.

It is reported the rescue party was led by Pete Waters. All the members of it were armed. A number of women came upon the scene and it is understood Pete Waters' wife really kept him from shooting Officer Waters by knocking his gun into the air.

Todd enlisted last June and it is said he has deserted twice.

It is probable either the United States marshal's office in Savannah will be communicated with or that the officer of Todd's company at Camp Wheeler will be advised of the situation and asked for further instructions.

FEED OUT YOUR HOGS SIX WEEKS EARLIER

In every lot of hogs on feed two or three weeks quickly and actually eat less than others. If all would fatten like these, the entire drove would be ready for the market six weeks earlier and save six weeks in an item that you fully understand.

The hog that fattens really must be in prime physical condition. The B. A. Thomas' Hog Powder is a conditioner for hogs. It keeps their system clean and healthy and enables them to fatten quickly without falling prey to the usual diseases of hogs.

The B. A. Thomas' Hog Powder is not a stock food. It's straight medicine and we took the agency because it enables you to feed your hogs much earlier.

USE GERMAN MONEY TO THWART DRAFT

NEGROES ARE ENCOURAGED TO EVADE DRAFT AND MINISTER RECEIVED LARGE SUMS.

Jackson, Miss., April 1.—The first concrete evidence that German money is being used to encourage Mississippi negroes to dodge the draft is furnished in a report filed at the Adjutant General's office from F. K. Ehridge, state inspector for local examination boards. The report shows it has been practically impossible to get negro registrants to respond to the notices to report sent out by the local board of Holmes county and Inspector Ehridge made an investigation which disclosed that C. H. Mason, pastor of a negro church, known as "The Church of God in Christ," has been preaching pro-German sermons and advising negroes to resist the draft.

Three weeks ago, according to the inspector's report, a foreigner named Dimitrios Giannoulou, conducted a meeting for a period of one week at this church. While in the town of Lexington this foreigner received a message in code which Mr. Ehridge attaches to his report. No translation is available.

An investigation made of "The Church of God in Christ," shows that it has headquarters at Los Angeles, and seems to be well supplied with money, for in August of last year a $10,000 brick church was built in Lexington, for which local negroes furnished only a small part of the building fund. It is also shown that the pastor, hitherto an obscure negro preacher, recently erected a $25,000 brick and stone residence on a valuable lot in Memphis.

That the draft dodging propaganda is having the desired effect is shown by the figures from Holmes county, where 123 registrants were called for enlistment on March 5, and only thirty-nine reported, four of the latter number desiring before they were entrained. To fill the deficiency the local board then called sixty-three registrants and only thirty-one reported. Call was next issued for forty-three registrants and only six reported.

Adjutant General Scales has published a list of seventy persons in Holmes county who have dodged the selective draft, after being called for service.

NO TIME TO PARLEY OVER PEACE TERMS

NO WAY TO END WAR EXCEPT TO SLAY THOSE WHO FORCED IT ON US.

If a brute had attacked your wife and murdered some of your children, would you, while his hands were dripping red with the blood of your loved ones, talk peace with him?

If such a fiend wanted to discuss peace terms with you while still attacking your daughters, would you fight, with all your power that God gave you, to throttle the beast, or would you parley back and forth and suggest the matter might be settled on some basis which left the rapist and murderer unpunished and free to take all the time of which he could rob your home?

On the battlefields of Europe, our loved ones are being murdered—remember Germany's war is a definite war of murder and outrage—and every electric spark which sweeps across the Atlantic from the trenches in France will bring an ever-increasing list of these murdered men who have gone out to save us from the attack of the murderer and the rapist.

Our allies, who for nearly four years, with superb heroism and at a fearful cost of men and money, have stood between us and hell, are calling to us, "For God's sake, hurry up," ere it be everlastingly too late.

But we talk about peace when there is no possible peace except the peace of death to us or death to Germany's fearful hell-begotten power.

Some men and women do not yet comprehend the meaning of the war. Some are pro-Germans, some are German spies, some are cowards who disgrace the mothers who gave them birth and some are simply plain everyday fools who should go out and root with the swine of the field until the appointed time to be killed by the go of mankind.

Peace! There can be no peace between Heaven and hell, between God and Satan!

Peace with the unrepentant, ungodly rapists and murderers!

Peace with the vilest criminals who ever blacken the records of man's history!

Peace with the outrager of your wife and daughter as you look on!

Peace with the cold-blooded butchers who murder your loved ones and the sons of millions and millions of others!

Is there anything on earth so craven, so bereft of soul that it would claim to be a man and yet be willing to parley with these accursed murderers and worse, led by "William, the accursed?"

"Is life so dear or peace so sweet" that we are willing to permit any word of peace to be uttered until we have throttled the demon and fought him to a finish? And then when he cries for mercy, let there be no mercy except such as he gave to Belgium and France, no mercy except to all civilization for all the centuries to come, expressed through the gallows of these traitors who plot on mankind, the Kaiser and all his associates, pay the sins.

Then and not until then should we have one word more to say to Germans or Germany. Now our supreme duty is to fight, fight to kill, kill until these brutes realize that a mightier power than theirs has been sent by God to do his work in their utter destruction.

ARE EAGER TO HELP.

Another big drive for funds to equip and maintain our armies on the fields of France is about to begin. On next Saturday the third Liberty Loan campaign begins throughout the country. The two preceding loans have been secured without difficulty and the next one will be no man has yet been called upon to make a sacrifice in these loans that in any degree compares with the sacrifice our young men are called upon to make in the service of their country. The defense of their country—AND US. By slow degrees the seriousness of the situation is dawning upon us. The casualty lists are reaching closer and closer to our own habitations. Some of our boys are already in the thick of the battle in France and others—many others—are on the path that will soon place them there. It is easy, then, to understand why our people are waking up. And the Liberty Loan drive that is to open next Saturday will tell in unmistakable terms how close it has reached to the hearts of our people. In truth, it is already being shown—a column have already shown in a silent yet impressive way how deeply some of our people are interested in the success of the coming drive: the big page advertisement last week was paid for by twenty-five persons whose interest was thus manifested. There are many other appeals—even more personal than those of last week, and next week and for coming weeks there will be still others. Their object is the same—to arouse those who may not otherwise see their duty. It is not an advertising scheme for private gain, but as a service for their country. These advertisements, if they succeed in arousing interest in the loan, will serve you and me—we will serve our boys as they go to the trenches, and will HELP TO BRING THEM HOME IN SAFETY. Read these advertisements as they are published from week to week. If you do not already see your duty, open your heart and conscience to the messages which these advertisements bring to you—THEN DO YOUR DUTY.

Those who are paying to have set before you these facts, are serving their country in their way. They can not go to the trenches and fight the enemy with their own hands, but they can help to equip our boys who are doing their bit gladly when they put the matter before the thousands who shall read these columns during the coming few weeks.

Besides those whose names appeared in connection with last week's advertisement, and those whose advertisements appear in this issue, the following have patriotically subscribed for space to be used in this manner during the next few weeks as the big drive continues:

F. H. Balfour Hardware Co., M. Seligman, Brooks Simmons Co., L. T. Denmark, Bland Grocery Co., W. O. Shuptrine, Aldred & Collins, Addison Plumbing Co., H. Miller's Dry Goods Store, Brannen's Pharmacy, Statesboro Cafe & Bakery, H. Clark's Grocery Store, City Market, C. M. Cain & Co., Savannah Guano Co. (by J. H. Donaldson, agent), John Wilcox Furniture Store, McDougald-Outland Co. (Clito), Statesboro Chero-Cola Bottling Co., J. Miller's Shoe Factory, Statesboro Buggy & Wagon Co., Oliff & Smith, Smith Sewing Machine Co., and Averitt Auto Co.

LONGER SCHOOL TERMS.

And now there is a proposition to extend the school term to twelve months! All the year in school! And the children will kick, and their parents will not take kindly to it.

There is meat in the proposition, however. It may be that the plan can be worked out. Those who do not care to take the full term, might go half the year, or part of the term, as suited them. Others could fall in line as those fell out. Teachers would thus be given employment all the year round, and opportunity for schooling would be afforded to those who for any reason may not be able to attend during the time when schools are now in operation. Then, those who took advantage of the full term ought to be able to finish up in shorter time, thus saving a few years of the most important part of the young person's life which is now spent in the school room or in college.

NEW COUNTY COMMISSIONERS

By the result of yesterday's primary, Bulloch county will have some new blood in her managing board coming year. The office of county commissioner is no insignificant one. Much depends upon the zeal and ability of the man who holds a place on the board. In a sense, all the county's affairs are in the hands of the county board. Especially are the roads directed by them. A board commissioner is a thankless one. Few men care to hold it more than one term, and few are able to do so. It is a sort of graveyard for the political ambitions of men. Let a man do his duty ever so faithfully, there will be no thanks for it. There are few men who have been neglected, and they go for the commissioner's hide when he offers again. It will be the same with the men who are newly chosen to administer road matters. They need not hope to do better than those who have gone before them—it can't be done. There are too many miles of road in this county to be kept up by the present road force, to say nothing of the impossibility of meeting the demands for new roads. The time is coming when our people will see that they can only get good roads by paying for them. A bond issue is the only thing that will do it.

95,000 DRAFT MEN

START FOR CAMPS

THEY INCLUDE 35,000 TAKEN ON SECOND DRAFT—TO BEGIN TRAINING AT ONCE.

Washington, March 28.—The movement of 95,000 draft men to the camps will begin tomorrow and will extend over five days. A majority of this number are men left from the first call. Approximately 35,000 are selectives taken on the second draft. Included in this number are several thousand negro troops from the Southern States, and the following white selectives: New Jersey, 4,275; New York, 12,288; Pennsylvania, 7,828; Massachusetts, 2,600. Under new plan, the men will be called in small groups throughout the year.

The failure of Congress to fix the new basis of apportionment will not hold up the training of the men. The camps will be kept filled to capacity, and where local boards withdraw their quotas in the new induction, they will be credited with such over-drafts on subsequent calls.

If Congress passes the bills to provide for the registration of men who have become twenty-one years of age since June 5, 1917, and to apportion future quotas on the basis of the number of registrants in Class 1, War Department officials believe all the men needed for the new army can be had without invading the deferred classifications.

The Provost Marshall General's idea is to exhibit the first class before taking men from the deferred classifications. It is now indicated that there may be 3,000,000 men in the first class and will be augmented by approximately 1,000,000 men becoming available each year through reaching military age. Under the plan now before Congress, the only men to be called from deferred classes would be skilled specialists needed for various branches of the service.

COUNTY SCHOOL NOTES.

Teachers are urged to push to immediate completion the farm labor survey as indicated in folders mailed out this week. Farmers should assist in this work. It is important that this be done at an early date and furnished the government. To do this will enable the government to supply necessary labor with which to cultivate this year's crops. This is the only way they can definitely ascertain the actual labor shortage. They will then have a definite clue as to just what the shortage is and will be, and will in some cases secure laborers for those who are liable to lose their crops for lack of labor, or furnish laborers to help with gathering the crops after they have been made. Teachers, see to it that every farmer be reached and the information asked for given. It is not a difficult job and is one that teachers and others should take special pride in doing. We now see that there are many ways in which we can help win this war besides by shouldering a gun and going into the trenches.

Measles and mumps are still playing havoc with quite a number of the schools. Several schools are having to stop for awhile on their account. Others that have not actually stopped are running with small attendance which is to be regretted. It will be a rather difficult question to operate continuous term next year on account of labor shortage, and it may be that we will have to have our next year's schooling in two terms so as to give children a chance to help with making and gathering crops. This is the idea expressed by one of our state school supervisors, and it looks somewhat that way from the experience we are having this year, and the worst has not yet come in this respect.

This is the best year we have ever had to build up schools and equip them. So will next year be if time does not change greatly. Let us continue until we have a system that is as well up as Bulloch is otherwise, and we will have what we are entitled to along this line. Just a few more sections to come to the front and all of Bulloch will have splendid schools well equipped. These sections not yet reached will be if the citizens will.

co-operate with us as they have in the sections where good schools have been built. Mrs. Pearl M. Austin, of the Snap school, has made application to the "Land-Hand Book Mission," Boston, Mass., for one of their free libraries. Should she be successful, it will be the second school to be given one of these libraries. See it is no excuse for any teacher not having a library of this kind, if you have none else. Must build a good book-case and take proper care of the books, is the requirement. Who will be the next to try for one of these? It is a splendid time for the people of the Hodges school to build. They have a very poor school house and have made a start to build a new, but have stopped without doing the real work. Get together and build, and you will get some outside help from a prominent business man of Statesboro. Let us build there this summer by all means. We must get together right away and see if we can not all agree on a place and plans. It will benefit all of you of that district.

DON'T FORGET THE HOGS.

We are all busy now planting and are liable to forget our hogs. Stop and think just a minute how much loss it will be to you next fall if you do not plan a little for the hogs. It will take only a little while to put in a sorghum and millet patch for them to graze. If this is done it will save hundreds of hogs that starve to death every year. Keep something for them to graze on until the fall crops come in.

When a hog is weak he can pick up diseases much more easily than when he is in a strong, healthy, growing condition. We are troubled a lot with worms just at this time and every farmer should keep the charcoal mixture before his hogs at all times. If anyone don't know this mixture come by the office or drop me a line and I will forward it to him. But new time is running smoothly now. We are already worrying about the confusion that will come next October when we have to go back to the old time.

STATESBORO FALLS IN ON GOVERNMENT TIME

CONFUSION FOR A DAY, BUT EVERYBODY IS READY TO "HELP WIN THE WAR."

If faster time will help win the war, Statesboro is ready to do her part, and she is now on the job. At least, everybody has joined the day light saving propaganda, whatever that means, towards whipping the Germans, and the local machinery is now running smoothly.

It was not easily done in Statesboro, though. There was a little confusion the first day—Sunday. Some didn't know about the advance in time, and others forgot it; while still others misunderstood. The city clock was not moved up Saturday night, because of the impression that the moving up was to be done Sunday night. The railroads, however, were on the job, and Sunday morning's trains began to move on the earlier hour. At the depot for a time it looked like the old song: "Niggers still a-comin' an' de train done gone!"—white people, too.

And at the churches! That was the limit. The Methodist pastor was determined to stand by the government from the very outset. He said he was even observing the law against the slaying of young hens, which was one of the things that made him think less of the Kaiser. So the minister began his sermon a few minutes after 10 o'clock old time (11 by the new), and the congregation continued to stream in for the next hour. Some of them got in in time for the benediction, and others possibly arrived after the congregation had gone home to dinner.

The leaders of the Baptist church realized there would be lack of understanding while the town clock carried the old time, and they decided to wait for it to move first. They held their Sunday-school at 10 o'clock, and there is where the joke was on their members who were quick to get onto the new time—they went to preaching and fell into the Sunday-school. ## GERMANS LOSE HEAVILY IN DRIVE AGAINST BRITISH

CAPTURED PRISONERS GIVE FIGURES INDICATING LOSSES AS HIGH AS SEVENTY PER CENT.

STATE OF MASSACHUSETTS FOR NATIONAL PROHIBITION

Boston, April 2.—The Senate today by a vote of 27 to 15 ratified the federal prohibition amendment, concurring with the House, which took similar action a week ago. An effort was made to substitute a referendum measure for the ratification resolution, but the motion was lost 25 to 14.

After the defeat of the first referendum measure the opponents of ratification moved to have the matter referred to "all persons qualified to vote for school committee," which would have included both men and women. This was defeated on a voice vote.

"You?" she breathed. "I am not going to speak," Holden said slowly, "for if you are a vision, you will vanish."

"Not a vision," Janet answered, "a spirit perhaps returned for a night to the scenes of her joyous past."

The man came forward abruptly. "I read of your marriage in the papers shortly after you left here," he said. "May I give a tiny wish for your happiness?"

"That was—my cousin, of the same name," Janet explained. "I am glad it is he who is shining. Suddenly she put forth her hands. "So that—is what you thought, Porter Holden," she asked, "and that is why you stayed away?"

JANET'S IMPULSE

By MILDRED WHITE.

(Copyright, 1918, Western Newspaper)

Janet sat in her dismal orderly room upon the upper floor of Mrs. Hopkins' rented apartment. She sighed, looking out on the heavy snowstorm which turned the early afternoon to dusk. How different, how woefully different her life had become in the short year. Then, there had been the cozy home, with father, now, she was alone.

It was always at this time of the New Year that the chosen few had made a jolly house party in Lucetta Newell's stately home among the country hills. Lucetta had been a college sister and her intimates thereafter were remembered with the annual invitation. What anticipated times of delightful excitement those visits had been! Lucetta's elder bachelor brother, Fred, was the first day and 40 per cent in an attack on Mesieres March 29.

John's friend's name was often in the papers. Only last week there had been a notice of his departure for the North; well, why should he remember a few days in his native country, a stolen kiss at parting? Janet was glad that the miles stretched between, glad that in the separating gulf their desires started madly, might not know that she still remembered. The others would be there no doubt this winter afternoon, making merry together in the great house upon the hill. Janet was in suddenly, her eyes shining with impulsive purpose. Why not go to them?

With cheeks aglow the girl drew from the clothes-dress her fur cloak, and of her possessions. Beneath it she could wear her little summer frock, the black woolen suit would be discarded. Like the old-time Janet she would be in the service of the stairs; the five-thirty for Hillcrest would be almost due. She reflected, gazing from the blurred car window, that it might have been wiser to have brushed her coming, but taking them by surprise, would after all suit better her present mood.

It was rather discouraging not to find the car waiting. Almost she had been the task of meeting all trains. No other vehicle, it was evident, had ventured out into the storm. Vaguely apprehensive of disappointment, she hurried up the white collar of her cloak, and pushed her way through roadside drifts. Here and there a light twinkled; the great house was still in the distance. Janet was tempted to turn back and seek shelter in the station, but the thought of the great log fireplace in the tower room, with its circle of dear familiar faces, gave her fresh courage to press on.

The house was not illuminated as though for guests. The light showing through the glass door was soft and dim. Janet heard her summoning ring echo into silence, but there was no response. Hopefully she made her way to the rear entrance. Here all was darkness.

Disheartened she came back, past the side iron spiral staircase. No, there high from the tower room came a welcoming gleam. With footstep she went. She would open the door and slip in among them, a weary little ghost from their past. The door was difficult to open, but unlocked as she expected. When had Hillcrest people thought of locked doors? Then Janet entered the room. As of old, the log fire burned cheerily, nearly to the top of the great chimney. The comfortable big room was vacant. Perplexed she passed down the halls. Silence met her everywhere. Then because the storm still swept without, because there seemed nothing else to do, Janet threw aside her fur coat.

Porter Holden was that same night disgusted with life. This new year seemed to have begun with less promise than the other. Last year, at least he had known dreams of happiness, though their fulfillment was never to be. With each halting step of his return to the old Newell mansion, his thoughts reverted to the bright-faced girl, who had made his last stay there so pleasant. And she had vanished from them all—forever. John Newell had coaxed him back to the vacant old place tonight—he had just left John at the agent's. Old Ben would have lights and fire going. John had said so Holden made his way up the spiral stairs. The door yielded more easily this time, and the man stood for a moment blinking his bewildered eyes.

In the light of the age sat a white-clad girl, her red lips parted wonderingly. "You?" she breathed. "I am not going to speak," Holden said slowly, "for if you are a vision, you will vanish."

"Not a vision," Janet answered, "a spirit perhaps returned for a night to the scenes of her joyous past."

The man came forward abruptly. "I read of your marriage in the papers shortly after you left here," he said. "May I give a tiny wish for your happiness?"

"That was—my cousin, of the same name," Janet explained. "I am glad it is he who is shining. Suddenly she put forth her hands. "So that—is what you thought, Porter Holden," she asked, "and that is why you stayed away?"

Calomel Today! Sick Tomorrow!

Guarantee Dodson's Liver Tonic

Don't take nasty, dangerous calomel when bilious, constipated, headachy. Listen to me!

Calomel salutes! It's mercury, Calomel acts like dynamite on a sluggish liver. When calomel enters into contact with sour bile it crashes into it, causing cramping and nausea. If you feel bilious, headachy, constipated and all knocked out, just go to your druggist and get a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tonic for a few cents which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than nasty calomel and without making you sick, you just go back and get your money. If you take calomel today you'll be sick and nauseated tomorrow; besides, it may salivate you, while if you take Dodson's Liver Tonic you will wake up feeling great, full of ambition and ready for work or play. It is harmless, pleasant and safe to give to children; they like it.

TEACHERS NEEDED FOR VOCATIONAL EDUCATION

Offers Possibilities For Real Leadership And Service.

With the rapid development of vocational education comes a new and striking demand for teachers. Our colleges of agriculture all over the country have been overworked for the past ten years in attempting to meet the demand for trained farmers, ranchers, foresters, and other vocational workers. Little or no attention has been given to the preparation of teachers in the field of secondary agriculture. The demands, therefore, in this important field of educational work can not now be met. Trained teachers are not to be had. The men who drafted the "Smith-Hughes Bill" realized this fact and made provisions for the training of this type of teacher.

The teacher training work in vocational agriculture is being provided for at the Georgia State Agricultural College. A division of Agricultural Education has been established, and is now offering regular courses to those preparing to enter this field of work. These courses are open to Agricultural College students or graduates. It is evident, then, on account of the millitary call, some special means of meeting the demands in this work will have to be resorted to. Special courses will be offered during the summer session of this year to both regular agricultural college students and to those who are now in this work or who are trying to qualify for it.

This should prove an attractive field in which to work for those who know and are in sympathy with country life. There are no limits to the possibilities for real leadership and service. The opportunities for advancement are as broad as the movement itself. Write for catalog to Prof. John T. Wheeler, State College of Agriculture.

WILL GEORGIA RAISE NEEDED MULE COLTS?

Many Are Needed For War Service.

A great question has come up of late among mule raisers, whether they should buy mules or horses because of the high price of mules. The British, French, Italian and our own governments are raising horses and mules very freely. The probable reason is that horses are in price than mules is that there are only about 4,844,000 mules as opposed to 21,565,000 horses in the United States.

Should the war continue for another year or two Georgia farmers will be raising mules for war purposes and use more horses. Experience has shown that under certain conditions the mule is a better transport than the horse. The mule will be used more and more by our government.

Georgia is a great livestock state and for the better class of white farmers the raising of mule colts should be a very profitable enterprise. The heavier the mule the better the price received for them. Now to raise large mule colts will require at least 1,300 pound good grade draft mares. At present these mares can be bought in Iowa and Illinois for from $200 to $250.

The idea that large horses cannot do as much work as a mule is erroneous. A mare can stand as much as a mule in the way of work and, besides, she has her foal, she only needs two or three weeks off and she is ready for hard work again.—C. A. Martini, Field Agent, State College of Agriculture.

Contributing to the early maturity of plant, phosphorus is of considerable importance. Therefore, to promote early fruiting of the cotton, an application of phosphoric acid should be made, generally speaking, about 400 pounds to the acre.

If other forms are used the application should be made in time and condition should be such as to render the phosphorus available at the proper time.

After good fertilizing and constant cultivation should be practiced, giving the plant the best chance possible to grow off and begin fruiting. The fruit must be set soon to escape damage.

The fight against the boll weevil will be harder this year than ever before. Some have imagined that the severe cold of the winter has killed the weevil, but this has proved to be an illusion. The weevil has already made its appearance in several sections of the state.—Prof. John R. Pain, State College of Agriculture.

STATE COLLEGE OPENS ITS DOORS TO WOMEN

Agricultural College Offers A Degree Course In Home Economics

The Georgia State College of Agriculture has opened its doors to women, and in September a two years course will be offered to graduates of junior colleges leading to a degree in home economics.

A Georgia woman, Miss Mary E. Crowell, of Athens, who, for the last four years, has had charge of the home economics work for the United States Department of Agriculture in fifteen southern states, gives leadership to the new department. It was Miss Crowell who organized club work for women and girls in Georgia in 1911, and since that time she has been helping in Washington to plan and direct home economics for the entire country.

In the work for the degree advanced courses in food study, nutrition and experimental cooking will be taken together with household management and general agriculture, subjects advanced courses in physiology, chemistry, biology and bacteriology will also be offered. The regular courses in dairying, poultry, husbandry, horticulture and general agriculture will be open both to women as well as to men.

The admission of women to the College and the institution of the new course is but another form of co-operation. The teaching facilities and laboratories which have been devoted exclusively to the higher education of men will now serve women as well and all this will be done at a very slight expense to the state. This progressive step of the College of Agriculture is an epochal event in the higher education of women in Georgia and the South, and gives to them the opportunity to learn practically and scientifically the science that is so surely giving Georgia the leadership among southern states.

The woman-power of the state is being called on to assume many responsibilities in certain lines of agriculture, and there must be leadership. Every citizen in the state needs a thoroughly trained home economist and then, too, the vocational field of agriculture will be open to men. In these war times and for many years in the future some women will have to take over the actual management of farms and training for this work they may now find at the College of Agriculture.

The Federal Food Administration and the United States Department of Agriculture have issued a statement demanding for the further training of women along technical lines, and it is in answer to this appeal that the new course has been offered by the Trustees of the College.

My stomach didn't feel good, would be bloated, and a good deal of gas. I began to have headaches almost all the time. I was afraid I would have fever, I felt so tired out. ### Notice To All Users of Coal.

The public will take notice that in the future, beginning with the first of April, the users of coal will be able to get supplied only upon application on regular form blanks furnished by the government to your local dealers. You are to put in your winter's supply during the summer. If the supply during the summer is not to be more than six tons, you will be allowed to order and store away that amount. If you use more than six tons, you will be allowed to order and store away two-thirds of what you use. Get your application blanks and get your orders in during spring and summer while deliveries can be made. Otherwise you will face a coal shortage with no possible chance of getting supplied. You will be required to state to your dealer the amount of coal now on hand and also state the normal amount used.

Bad Taste in Your Mouth.

When you have a bad taste in your mouth you may know that your digestion is faulty. A dose of Chamberlain's Tablets will usually correct the disorder. They also cause a gentle movement of the bowels. You will find this to be one of the best medicines you have ever become acquainted with.

Artillery is not even second to airplanes just now. A vital need of the allies on the western front is a preponderance of heavy guns.

"I don't fully agree with air service enthusiasts that this war is going to be won in the air," one of the world's greatest military experts told me the other day when I visited the biggest artillery school in France, where he is helping to train American artillerymen.

"I think this war is going to be won on the ground with, of course, the invaluable help we will get from our air service."

"Artillery and air craft nowadays are so interdependent one on the other, for results, that the allies must have more of both than the Germans."

"We must have the planes to hunt out the positions of the enemy, but if we don't have the big guns behind our own lines the information we get from our air scouts isn't going to do us much good."

"So I'd say, artillery and more artillery and airplanes and more airplanes."

The biggest artillery training school in France, where thousands of American artillerymen are being given the final touches before they go into action, has adopted as its slogan the oft repeated remark of Napoleon: "The Lord is on the side with the best artillery."

Wonderful advances have been made in artillery by both the allies and the Germans since the start of the war.

The Germans were the first to go in for heavy siege and naval guns. With them they reduced to smithereens Belgian forts that were believed up to that time to be indestructible.

Get your blanks at once and place your orders for the coal you know you will need or else you will suffer the results of coal shortage next winter.

All concerns using coal must put in winter's supply during the summer. Order of Dr. L. G. Hardman, State Fuel Administrator.

THE SNAPSHOT

By NAPOLEON S. SARKIS.

(Copyright, 1917, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

The west-bound express was sidetracked at Ancona waiting for the east-bound train. Bruce Carman, a kodak enthusiast in the first stages of the disease, had photographed every attractive view from Albany and Niagara Falls to Ancona. From the back platform, from the steps of his own car and from the observation smoker, he had "shot" the flying landscape.

At Ancona he was standing on the last platform of the side-tracked train, and had jotted down his photographic memoranda of snow-crowned Catskill mountains.

A shrill whistle, an oncoming roar, and the express thundered past on the main track. As it slowed up at the station Carman's train moved on, but not before he had indelibly fixed on the film of his kodak a glimpse of the last of the ordinary summer scene. He raised his head and saw, vaguely, a girl bending over a kodak focused, apparently, on him, but before she looked up his car had rounded a curve and she was lost to view.

Carman returned to New York after several weeks, and one of his first acts was to develop his views. With the aid of the ordinary amateur, a few of them were good, but most of them were bad. Only one view was sharp and clear. Framed by the doorway of a sleeper, a beautiful young girl looked straight from the film into Carman's eyes.

"By Jove!" he exclaimed, "what a beauty! She must be the Ancona girl."

The Ancona girl she was and the Ancona girl she remained for days, weeks, and even months. Carman studied the picture off and she was charming. In his blueprint she was beautiful, and blueprints are crucial tests of beauty; on carbon paper she was exquisite, and with each exposure Carman's picture became deeper and deeper into Carman's heart. At last he enlarged her, or not quite at last, for the crowning point of his work was to frame her in silver and install her on his dressing table as mistress of his heart and possessions. Then, one evening, she was christened, and it was in this way:

"By Jove!" he exclaimed, "what a beauty! She must be the Ancona girl."

Dear Gwen:

I am keeping my promise by writing, as soon as the new studio has been installed. It looks as though I might do good work here, in my glass-roof room near the sky. The only place available for renting seemed this old-time mansion now given over to cheap apartments; this, because we are nearer the business center than a desirable residence section. To me, however, obscurity lends value to the situation, as I may be free from visiting interruptions. The picture progresses favorably and I am intent upon a second. Please save yourself the trouble of instructing friends to hunt me out. I have already been obliged to refuse various evening invitations tendered in my "later Gwendolene" name.

I suppose you are, as usual, busy with your pet charities. Do not worry about my welfare, as I shall keep you duly informed.

Your affectionate brother, JACK.

Dear Gwen:

The morning sun comes in at right angles through my glass roof, the painting grows apace, and meals served from a nearby restaurant are perfect. In my enjoyable isolation I might be on a desert isle—save for the young woman across the hall. She would, I think, be fit subject for your passion for helpfulness—if you could reach her. Oh, these proud, self-sacrificing American women of ours!

What will they not do for love and duty? Though I must confess this is my first actual experience with the kind, "Carrie," who "wipes up our floors," says that when my neighbor's husband went to war she gave up her comfortable flat and came here to live with her child. During the day she has taken up an unaccustomed position in a flower shop, it seems, but she sings right cheerily at night as she cooks the child's supper. It was this same singing which attracted my attention to the two—that and the child's evident glow when her mother brings home a current roll. Can you imagine it, Gwen, unalloyed joy over the fact of a current roll? Joy in three dingy rooms near the roof? Joy, after a hard day's work? It makes one long to step out and buy a quantity of those delicacies we sated ones take as our matter-of-course—and leave them at their door. But the presumption would be resented. The child looks like a Christmas show-window doll.

After school hours she often sits at a turn of the stair, knitting for "father." When I almost fell over her one day she naively informed me that "it was not so lonesome there as inside."

I thank you for comforts kindly sent to myself. Your loving

Dear Gwen:

I am having difficulty with my study of spring; the face of the central figure lacks that significant sweet freshness which it must have.

Following your advice, I stopped at the flower shop one evening, purchasing from my neighbor a rose tree, which has been sent to you. Acting again upon your suggestion, I frankly presented myself and made inquiry concerning Peggy-May's father. Peggy-May happens to be the unusually connected name of the child. Characteristically free from self-consciousness were the mother's replies.

"Mr. May was well and in good spirits; she, herself, managed very nicely, and Peggy-May was happy. I was thankful—and dismissed. So to help these brave people seems beyond our power. Love to you, my sister. JACK.

Dear Gwen:

Pardon me if this letter may prove somewhat incomprehensible. Perhaps "joyously irresponsible" would better suit my case.

You accused me of negligence in writing, while the sittings of my picture were going on, but if you could but have known the desperate state of my mind at the time. Inwardly I was accusing myself of failing in love with a married woman. And though the object of my love bent ever absorbed over her knitting she must have known the state of my heart. Then, blessedly, miraculously—now that it is all over—Peggy-May took the crown, and the woman I love came swiftly for me one evening, begging me to stay with the child while she hurried for the doctor. Then the story came out. "Carrie" had made a natural mistake—Peggy-May's father had gone to war, but it was his sister who had taken the motherless child into her unselfish care. And so—in the happiest man in the world, Gwen, and we want you to come and plan for our wedding.

Yours, from a seventh heaven, JACK.

WOMAN IN CASE PAYS FINE AND AGREES TO GET OUT OF THE STATE.

Atlanta, April 2.—Mrs. Margaret A. Hirsch, convicted of attempting to blackmail Mayor Asa G. Candler to the extent of half a million dollars, was released from Fulton county jail this afternoon upon the payment of a fine of $300, conditional upon her leaving the state at once.

When Judge Hill reduced the fine from $1,000, and rescinded the prison sentence at the state prison farm of twelve months, her husband, Henry H. Hirsch, immediately paid the fine, and she left the city, it is stated for an unknown destination.

Judge Hill stated he was actuated by the fact that Mrs. Hirsch's health was impaired by her long confinement in jail, that her reputation and character have been ruined, and her husband has been greatly humiliated through innocent association with the case. This ends the case so far as it affects Mrs. Hirsch.

The case of J. W. Cook, jointly indicted with her, and convicted, is now pending on appeal to the state Court of Appeals. Cook is under sentence of $1,000 fine and twelve months on the chain-gang.

Drive This Shadow From Our Land

THE hordes of the war-mad Kaiser are striking at our civilization.

Only the stubborn resistance of our Allies in Europe has saved America from being over-run by Huns.

If the Allied line on the Western Front should break—THEN WHAT?

Our armies are speeding to France. Already some of our boys have made the supreme sacrifice for the cause of freedom. More men will be needed. They must be equipped. It takes BILLIONS OF DOLLARS to do this.

Let the bright rays of these Billions drive the shadow away. Send the reflection to Berlin. Show the military masters of Germany that Americans are not close-fisted. Convince them that we will make any sacrifice for the cause of freedom and democracy.

Every dollar you invest in Liberty Bonds gives strength to our soldiers. It furnishes them with armes and ammunition to fight this menace in Europe.

FLORIDA BOY SELLS PAPERS TO BUY BONDS

JOHN T. MAXWELL

This 14-year-old youngster of Perry, Taylor county, Florida, is pointing the way to other boys, and men, too, in this national crisis when men and money are needed by the government in the fight against Prussian autocracy. He invested $250 of his earnings from the sale of newspapers in his home town in bonds of the Second Liberty Loan. He accumulated this money without help from his father or anyone else. Since that time he has been saving his money and expects to subscribe to the Third Liberty Loan. John is so proud of his bonds that he has determined to keep on buying just as long as he can earn money and the Government has any bonds to offer.

AMERICA NOT SAFE FROM HUN ATTACK

Germany Determined To Keep Farmers From Shipping Products to European Markets.

Atlanta. — The average Southern farmer, situated far from the seacoast, thinks he is secure even should the Kaiser, in his mad desire for conquest, attempt an invasion of America. He is enjoying the most prosperous period of his life. Cotton is bringing thirty cents a pound; and more; there is a ready market for hogs and cattle at fancy prices; food crops are being sold at unprecedented prices; and the manufacturers have paid top prices for velvet beans and other crops.

It is but natural that the farmer, contented with life, should have no thought of the dangers surrounding him.

"Why should this war worry me?" the farmer asks himself, thinking of the miles of hills and valleys that separate him from the seacoast. He is not concerned with the "freedom of the seas" and Germany's right to traverse Belgium, France and Italy. If they should ever send an army here, why, he'd fight, he says.

Anything that affects the general welfare of the country affects the farmer. And the "freedom of the seas"—no other policy established by the United States has been and will be more beneficial to the Southern farmer.

Keep Sea Free. — It was the government's determination to keep the seas free that has enabled the Southern farmer to market his cotton crop for thirty cents a pound instead of six.

When the war is over a steady stream of agricultural products manufactured articles and materials of all kinds will continue to flow to war-stricken Europe. Thousands of vessels will be engaged in this commerce.

With a hungry market and plenty of bottoms available, freight rates will be correspondingly lower. The Southern farmer should be vitally interested in ocean transportation as in rail transportation.

The rugged hills and vast plains will not stop Germany from winning the commerce of the seas and cutting off the rest of Europe from trade with the Southern farmer. Neither will they protect the farmer should Germany actually invade America. A hostile army would not strike at the farms. It would attack the seat of government in Washington.

Only a short distance from the sea. And once in control of Washington, it would have the reins and from there would force the farmer to do its bidding.

Building Many Ships. — The United States Government has determined to check, not only Germany's greed for territory but its ambition to control the seas. The government has undertaken a shipbuilding program that will supply the navy for the farmer to send his products to European markets, not only during the war but afterwards. These products cannot be successfully carried out unless the government is given support by the people. Billions of dollars are needed. The farmer not only displays his patriotism by lending the Government money through subscribing to Liberty Bonds, but protects his future interests.

FOOD FACTS

PREPARED BY The Federal Food Administration For Georgia

Cut Down What We Eat

The normal consumption of sugar in the United States is about 90 pounds per capita. We are asked to use only one ounce and a half per day, or three pounds per month. The normal consumption of meat is: Beef, 52.5 pounds; mutton, 7 pounds; pork, 103.5 pounds; other meats, 3 pounds; or a total of 183.5 pounds per capita per month. We are asked to cut down the consumption of meat by a minimum of one ounce per day. We could probably cut down our consumption by a quarter of a pound per day and still not miss it, thereby saving an abundance for our allies abroad.

Of fat we eat 4.42 ounces a day. We are asked to cut this down to about 11 ounces per week. Of wheat and wheat flour products we normally eat about 18 pounds a month per capita. We are asked to reduce the consumption now to 6 pounds per capita per month. Of corn we normally eat about 3.5 pounds a week. We are not asked to restrict ourselves in the use of this cereal in any particular. In fact, we are asked to eat larger quantities of corn in order that we may materially reduce the consumption of wheat flour to a positive minimum.

Save 21,000,000 Bushels

There is no shortage of potatoes, corn and oats; the milk supply is not pinched, spring gardening will supply much for our tables. But we must, as a nation, save 21,000,000 bushels of wheat to feed the armies. Not whether we want to or not—we MUST.

Every American is urged to cut his average ration of wheat by 50 per cent, which would reduce the total normal consumption of 12,000,000 bushels a month to 11,000,000 bushels. That gives a ration of not more than 1 1/4 pounds wheat product weekly for each person. Flour sales will be cut to one-eighth of a barrel for the town customer and to one-quarter of a barrel to a country customer, that retailers' stocks may be distributed to as great a number as possible. The wheat contents of bakers' bread will be reduced to 75 per cent on April 14, which increases by 5 per cent the amount of substitutes that must be saved.

MARINES BECOME EXPERT IN FITTING GAS MASKS

Quantico, Va., April 2.—The official time limit for adjusting gas masks is six seconds but United States marines equipped here are attempting to set new records for speedy adjustment.

French and British instructors say the marines are showing wonderful speed in the handling of the gas masks—an almost incredible speed—one that is likely to break records in gas mask adjustment.

The gas mask has a series of complicated straps that makes it no small trick to adjust the headgear within six seconds' time, but entire companies of marines have already beaten that mark.

WE invite your attention to the intelligent manner in which we have anticipated your particular spring clothes requirements.

Too often, "New Style" is made the excuse for fitting a man in some ultra-fashion, who would be more properly attired in a suit of conservative cut.

In selecting items to appear in our spring display, we have divided men into types, and the zealotry of no salesman in our employ will subject you to the danger or having forced upon you a style, which while strictly "This Season's" is not true to your particular build.

EXECUTIVE CLEMENCY

NOT THING OF THE PAST

MOB LYNCHED NEGRO WHO HAD BEEN RESPECTED BY ANTI-PARADOXIC.

Atlanta, April 2.—Those who mistakenly supposed that executive clemency would be written out of the constitution of Georgia when Hugh M. Dorsey became governor were very much mistaken.

Although he took the position in his campaign that the clemency prerogative should not be abused, Governor Dorsey has not hesitated to exercise it whenever he saw fit, and as often as he saw fit.

His policy in this respect throws an interesting light on the question which has been so much agitated in Georgia in recent years. Executive clemency is almost as old as the law itself. It is a foundation stone of our form of government. To attempt to take it away or weaken it would weaken the whole governmental structure.

Governor Dorsey has issued numerous paroles, commutations and respite, and some pardons. Recently when he respite a negro in Tallapoosa county who was sentenced to be hanged, a mob organized and lynched the negro. The governor promptly offered a reward of $500 for the arrest and conviction of any member of the mob and would have called the sheriff to account if he had authority to do so.

CONSTIPATION CAUSES OBSTINATE HEADACHES

When your head aches you will usually find the bowels are inactive, and if you relieve this condition, by clearing the intestinal organs of the fermenting mass of food, waste, foul gases and bile, the head is relieved immediately.

Remember this the next time you suffer from headache. The combination of simple laxative herbs with peppermint oil by Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is highly recommended as a gentle laxative that acts easily and quickly, without griping or discomfort. It contains no opiate, narcotic, or habit-forming drug, is pleasant to the taste, and a most effective remedy for headache. Mothers find it especially desirable as a laxative for children.

You can buy Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin from your druggist for fifty cents. Get a bottle and have it in the house when needed. A trial bottle, free of charge, can be obtained by writing to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 456 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois.
